MOST DRAMATIC SCENE IN MURDER TRIAL OF THE CENTURY. A climax achieved by few master showmen in stage productions was effected by Prosecutor Simpson when he had Mrs. Jane Gibson, dying woman farmer, borne into court on a stretcher to give her damaging testimony against defendants in the Hill-Mills trial. The courtroom was hushed in the solemn presence of the witness who delivered her testimony virtually from a deathbed of pain. Note Willie Stevens, eccentric defendant, nervously reaching for pencil he's almost constantly toying with. Photo shows (1) nurse attending Mrs. Gibson, (2) Mrs. Gibson, (3) Dr. Snyder, (4) Attorney Case cross-examining witness, (5) Willie Stevens, (6) Mrs. Hall, (7) Henry Stevens. (Photo Graphic.)
